Summer A curriculum: In addition to English and Maths, your child will be studying a particular topic into which many of their lessons will feed. Below is a synopsis of how the topic will be studied and some opportunities to extend the learning at home.

TOPIC:
This the term the children will be identifying the type of information that the census gives about people and use the information to make inferences about people from the past. They will make observations and identify changes between periods of time. They will investigate the key events in Mary Bucktrout's life, extract information from the census and decide whether a family was rich or poor. They will identify the dangers of working in a textile mill and identify the thoughts and feelings of a Victorian working child.
